COURSE DESCRIPTION

This is an introductory course for Anma/Shiatsu massage. Anma is a manual therapy method using kneading and tapping techniques. It is considered as a Japanese version of Tui-Na. Shiatsu directly translates as "Finger Pressure". Unlike Anma, it gives deep finger pressure at each point and does not knead or tap. This course combines two of the major manual therapies in Japan and teaches how to give great comfort to the patients.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

This is a great way to build "Practitioner's Healing Hands", which requires the knowledge of how to approach one's body via touch, palpation, and receptivity to the body's signals. Understanding and feeling those manifestations is essential to being a good acupuncturist. It is a great way to practice palpatory skills. This short lecture, hands-on and practical style course is fun and enjoyable to participate in. By the end, participants will be able to give a whole body Anma/Shiatsu massage using proper techniques as well as sensitivity of touch for the client.
